DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103© and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claim 44 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zicker in view of Andrews.

Zicker discloses a wireless communication system containing a plurality of independent wireless service networks 14,16 for providing wireless services within a common geographic region, a plurality of portable radio devices 12 for allowing access to the wireless service networks 14,16, each containing an accessing circuit 66 for providing access to any one of the plurality of wireless service networks by requesting and establishing access, memory 70,72 for storing a "user criteria" for selecting a wireless service (figure 14) and a control signal generator (also within 66) for automatically generating the access control signal in response to an automatic selection of the wireless network that best satisfies the stored criteria for wireless service and for causing the accessing circuit to access the wireless service network. It is considered that the stored list is a function of "user criteria" since such information that is presented to the portable radio device is a function of the cost associated with each system (col. 2, line 60 - col. 3, line 20). Zicker does not specifically disclose the portable radio devices are frequency and protocol agile. However, such a technique is shown by Andrews which disclose a portable radio device 10 having the capability to adjust the radio frequency and protocol in response to a control signal when changing to a different system. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to apply this frequency and protocol agile portable radio of Andrews to the system of Zicker for the purpose of allowing the portable radio to access more a higher variety of systems.

Reissue Applications

4. Claims 25-46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 251 as being an improper recapture of claimed subject matter deliberately canceled in the application for the patent upon which the present reissue is based. As stated in Ball Corp. v. United States, 221 USPQ 289, 295 (Fed. Cir. 1984):

The recapture rule bars the patentee from acquiring, through reissue, claims that are of the same or broader scope than those claims that were canceled from the original application.

The recapture rule bars the patentee from acquiring, through reissue, claims that are of the same or broader scope than those claims that were canceled from the original application.

A question of patentability is raised with respect to claims 25-46 under 35 U.S.C. 251 based upon lack of error. Specifically, the asserted reissue claims are broader than the original claims withing the meaning of "recapture rule" (see MPEP 1412.02; In re Clement, 45 USPQ 2d 1161 (Fed. Cir. 1997)), which prohibits grants of reissue claims that are broader than original claims in a manner directly pertinent to the subject matter surrendered during prosecution.

Specific attention is directed to new independent claims 25,29,33,38 and 42-46. During prosecution of the parent patent, applicant's representative, in paper no. 8 (received May 22, 1995), included the following limitations in order to distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art: "a plurality of wireless communication networks using differing radio frequency modulation protocols and differing radio frequencies", "a first wireless communication network operating using a first radio frequency spectrum allocated to said first wireless communication network and using a first modulation protocol” and “a second wireless communication network operating using a second radio frequency spectrum allocated to said second wireless communication network and different from said first radio frequency spectrum and using a second modulation protocol”.

As set forth in In re Clement, 45 USPQ 2d 1161 (Fed. Cir. 1997), if the reissue claim is as broader than the canceled or amended claim in all aspects, the recapture rule bars the claim, which prohibits grant of reissue claims that are broader than the original claims in a manner directly pertinent to subject matter amended during prosecution.

Applicant's claims 25,29,33,38 and 42-46 are broader than the original patent claim 1 in exactly the area amended for patentability in the parent prosecution.

Although the recapture rule may be avoided in some circumstances, such as where claims that are broader in certain respects were materially narrowed in other respects, independent claims 25,29,33,38 and 42-46 do not appear to be materially narrowed to avoid recapture.

5. This application is objected to under 37 CFR 1.172(a) as lacking the written consent of all assignees owning an undivided interest in the patent. The consent of the assignee must be in compliance with 37 CFR 1.172. See MPEP § 1410.01.

A proper assent of the assignee in compliance with 37 CFR 1.172 and 3.73 is required in reply to this Office action.

Art Unit: 2683

6. The original patent, or an affidavit or declaration as to loss or inaccessibility of the original patent, must be received before this reissue application can be allowed. See 37 CFR 1.178.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 1-24 are allowed.

Conclusion

8. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Edward Urban whose telephone number is (703) 305-4385.
